

SOCIAL MEDIA

March: Week 1

(Image: March Week 1.png)

Singing songs that have rhymes and patterns can be a fun way to have children listen to sounds. Research finds that it is beneficial for children to hear music and sing at home.

Learn more at: <https://www.naeyc.org/our-work/families/playing-music-home>

#123connectwithme #singing #music #parenting

Tag: @NAEYC

March: Week 2

(Image: March Week 2.png)

Early language and literacy skills are learned best through everyday moments—reading books, talking, laughing, and playing together. Children learn language when you talk to them and they communicate back to you, and by hearing stories read and songs sung aloud.

Learn more about how listening to sounds will help your baby develop early language and literacy skills at:

<https://www.zerotothree.org/resources/1285-supporting-language-and-literacy-skills-from-12-24-months>

#123connectwithme #listen #parenting #languagedevelopment

March: Week 3

(Image: March Week 3.png)

What do you hear? Playing with sound is a great way to support brain development. Check out this collection of sounds and encourage your child to practice their listening skills!

<https://www.bbc.co.uk/teach/school-radio/eyfs-listening-skills/zbc4y9q>

#123connectwithme #sound #development #parenting

March: Week 4

(Image: March Week 4.png)

Your baby's first words are a major linguistic milestone! While they may just be repeating what they hear without understanding meaning, this indicates a fully developed repertoire of sounds.

What were your child's first words?

#123connectwithme #development #parenting #firstwords